A friendship born in a place without time, a strange and enchanted place where desires are liberally expressed and games invented: a kind of limbo between heaven and earth where to expect the exact date and hour of birth.

In this place the two protagonists come together: they are very different, one bold and tumultuous, the other shy and embarrassed. Both have a little sheet with them on which a very important appointment is written: their birth dates. Once the initial uncertainty of staying together in a place with no way out is overcome, the two slowly start to interact, to know each other a little bit and to discover their differences: one likes the sea, the waves and the dolphins, the other the air, the mountains and the eagles; one is calm, reserved and very tidy, the other vivacious, involving and lively. In between their games they realize that maybe, since they are both at the same time in the same place, on their sheets the date might be the same... and that consequently their destinies are related: two twins! And so ideas and feelings merge until a new perspective of their future life together emerges.

The emotional involvement of the story's characters is very strong and based on their desire to play and to amuse themselves but also on conflicts and divergences which, however, don't separate them but unify them even more. And so the young audience is taught how important human relations are to move the entire world.

Quelli di Grock, always attentive to evolutionary problems, also this time talk about human relationships and the importance of friendship and especially about how much this value helps us to grow, to evolve, to know ourselves and to emancipate.

RASSEGNA STAMPA

IL GAZZETTINO - Anna Vidoni

Evidentemente è vero che in ogni adulto c'è un po' del bambino che è stato, perché la semplicità e la poesia della pièce hanno strappato non poche risate a un pubblico assolutamente eterogeneo (erano presenti in sala molti più grandi che bambini).

GAZZETTA DEL MEZZOGIORNO

"Quelli di Grock" con lo spettacolo "Data di nascita" sono i vincitori della sesta edizione di "Anteprima", il festival nazionale di teatro ragazzi. Lo ha deciso la giuria composta da studenti delle scuole dell'obbligo lucane. Con un largo consenso, ben 317 voti, i giurati hanno apprezzato una storia dove fantasia e realtà si mescolano e si rincorrono in un luogo senza tempo dove ogni desiderio si realizza.
